

Media and Terrorism

Global Perspectives

Edited by Des Freedman Goldsmiths, University of London and Daya Kishan Thussu University of Westminster

'Media and Terrorism: Global Perspectives intelligently and incisively broadens the discussion about the complex ways in which media and forms of political violence interrelate today. Situated within contexts of global inequality and geopolitical interests, contemporary media and the pursuit of strategic and symbolic politics, the collection opens up new and necessary vistas on this deadly global issue. Authoritative and cutting-edge'

- Simon Cottle, Professor of Media and Communications, Cardiff University

Have the media contributed to exacerbating the political, cultural and religious divides within Western societies and the world at large?

How can media be deployed to enrich, not inhibit, dialogue?

To what extent has the media, in all its forms, questioned, celebrated or simply accepted the unleashing of a 'war on terror'?

Media and Terrorism brings together leading scholars to explore how the world's media have influenced, and in turn, been influenced by terrorism and the war on terror in the aftermath of 9/11.

Accessible and user-friendly with lively and current case studies, it is a perfect student text and is an essential handbook on the dynamics of war and the media in a global context.
