Networking and Selforganization in Berlin

You are invited to a presentation of examples of decades of autonomous, self-organized, political, anti-racist projects in Berlin. These experiences are essential for the ongoing exercise of autonomous self-organization in relation to the resistance of undocumented refugees in the NBBR process. These are important reference points that undocumented refugees need to know about when setting up self-organized infrastructures and agendas in Berlin and beyond. The NBBR should be understood as a long-term political program which aims at collectively building up permanent political safe-spaces, free from neo-nazis, police, and racist hate-attacks, i.e. by state representatives and racist citizens. There will be permanent, educational political programs (e.g. on self-organization, etc) on a daily basis and infrastructures such as: transportation, accommodation, human rights law courses, legal & medical support and many more.

Program:

Entry 19h:00 (free)

20h:15

The evening will start with music statements and end with live performances, from political artists who are both supporting the NBBR process and using their music as a tool of political communication and mobilization.

Food:

Vegan food is provided by independent support activists of the program and process.

20h:30- 11h:00

Some Berlin autonomous, self-organized anti-racist projects over the years:

1. „Vielleicht bin ich morgen schon weg“:

A 14 minute film presentation „Vielleicht bin ich morgen schon weg“ (with English subtitles) by refugee children in Germany against their deportation and persecution. This is a documentary film realized by „Jugendliche ohne Grenzen“ (Young people without borders) (JOG) which is a nationwide association in Germany founded in 2005 by young refugees. They co-produced it together with Formatwechsel Medien Werkstatt e.V. 2007.

2. Introducing 30 years of the self-organized structure and work of Antiracist Dokumentation (ARI-Doku) in documenting the "German Asylum Policy and its Deadly Consequences" (1993-2013) caused by German administration and its police. We share the importance of this work to the self-organization of undocumented refugees and the challenges of continuing the work, with support from other self-organized refugees and refugee rights activists. www.ari-berlin.org/doku/titel.htm

3. Introducing more than 25 years of the non-governmental self-organized office for medical assistance of refugees (Büro für medizinische Flüchtlingshilfe). They provide alternative health care to many immigrants, most of whom despite legal entitlement to health assistance are experiencing racial discrimination, exclusion and other discrimination from both medical practitioners and the government social administration responsible for them. Since 1996 the Medibüro also campaigns for undocumented immigrants by political and pragmatic means. We will share both past and ongoing campaigns, important for refugees and the NBBR process. e.g. „Ich krieg mein Kind wo ich will“ or the upcoming „Frieden statt Frontex,“ due in August .

4. Activists present more than 4 years of biweekly mobilization-action from Berlin to Hennigsdorf asylum home. They recently opened a self-organized office with support from Hennigsdorf self-organized refugees. Through this established channel the NBBR program will promote interactive legal seminars with the asylum home activists and invite them to the NBBR camp.

5. Long years of self-organization in Berlin with international solidarity for political prisoners: the anti-prison campaigning experience in Berlin and how it helps the self-organization of refugees within the NBBR process. (The International Mumia campaign in Berlin (<http://www.freiheit-fuer-mumia.de/>) and Freedom campaign for Sonja and Christian (<http://www.rote-hilfe.de/77-news/127-solidaritaet-mit-sonja-und-christian>))

6. Introducing NBBR upcoming events: Bridging the gap between self-organized undocumented refugee infrastructures and other self-organized anti-racist projects in Berlin during the NBBR process:

- The NBBR interactive seminars on German law and human rights law (in different languages) with a collective of several Berlin law students and other activists.
- A year long program in the city of Berlin and at different asylum homes.
- The dates of mobilization “open air” concerts at different asylum homes, which will also share information about the NBBR program (e.g. interactive seminars on human rights law, German law, communication and networking, etc) during the NBBR Camp in August.
- A legal monitoring tour by a legal support group of law students and other activists to visit and report on the situation in different homes, with the aim of assisting asylum inmates towards possible avenues of redress from within and outside the asylum homes.
- Announcement of the 13 July 2013 solidarity Party.

23:00

Live performances towards a barrier-free NoBorder Camp Berlin Reloaded process from political artists Konta and Mal Élélé (Singer from Irie Révoltés) who will both play on the 13 of July Soli-Concert with other bands.

This S036 infoevent is part of a series of regular NBBR info events. We are looking forward to sharing more examples of self-organization from the many existing anti-racist and left-autonomous groups in Berlin.
